Caramel, showing Saturday 23rd Feb

From Tangiers to Tehran
 Cambridge and London have joined forces to celebrate women's film from around the world. We run the rule over the cinematic offerings you can catch in Cambridge.

From Tangiers to Tehran, the title for this women's film festival, does not really do the scope of productions here justice. With films from Europe, Asia, Africa, North America and any combination of the four, it truly is a global effort.

However, rather than being a series of films riddled with contemporary western feminist concerns, the Women's Cinema collection is populated with films created by those who would usually find movie making at odds with their indigenous culture.

Here we rundown the films that you can view in Cambridge and tell you when they're on. If you'd like to see the films showing in London, check out the extra events in the capital or just find out more about the Cambridge films, then go to the official website.
